ABSTRACT

Enhanced Universal Plug and Play ("UPnP") control points may be generated. According to one embodiment, a variety of device-specific information (e.g., device and service descriptions) and platform information may be used to generate custom source code for an UPnP control point. The source code may be enhanced for the control point. The source code may then be compiled to generate the enhanced UPnP control point.